“Taking Screening to the Next Level”

By Barry Nixon

Most large corporations understand the importance of preemployment screening. But few recognize the need to periodically rescreen the work force. They presume that a person who had a clean criminal, credit, or driving record when they were hired will continue to have a spotless record. But people change, and so do their circumstances.

Also Inside This Month:

DISASTER MANAGEMENT: Find out which region of the United States should fear earthquakes most. It'll surprise you.

AUTO THEFT: The European Union struggles to stop car thieves that snatch luxury cars.

MODERN DAY BONDAGE: Slavery has crept into the global supply chain.

DATA LEAKS: Companies need to teach password protection techniques to safeguard themselves from sensitive information breaches.
